

Sirs: please consider not changing the Indiana telephone privacy law. I have enjoyed the last few years of not receiving unwanted telephone calls from telemarketers. This means not receiving calls during my familys dinner or other inappropriate times.

If I want services from these firms then the law allows me to contact them and them to contact me at approved times of my choice.

This law also allows me not to use an ansewering machine to monitor incoming calls from friends and family. This expense is not always affordable for a lot of my fellow Hoosiers.

Again please do not change our state law.

sincerely
Doug Miller
